To whom it may concern

Brian Rabinowitz was asked to make a presentation to the Maccabi Victoria Presidents' Dinner on Wednesday July 19, 2006. This Annual Dinner attracted approximately 50 attendees, primarily the Presidents, Committee members and other senior personnel from among our 22 sporting clubs. The group is a highly experienced one and fairly discerning in its appreciation (or otherwise) of the quality of speakers at events such as these.

I am delighted to report that Brian's talk was met with unanimous support and positive feedback. His balance of anecdotes, video clips, personal stories and specific input on motivational and nutritional matters, hit the right note for the whole audience. It is not easy to maintain audience interest for a period of close to one hour, in a night session, but Brian was able to easily hold people's attention and probably could have continued longer.

Brian's talk was thus extremely well received, provided specific material and handouts for future and ongoing use, and seemed to clearly motivate a group of sporting administrators faced with the constant task of running their clubs and inspiring club personnel. In addition, Brian's manner and demeanour meant that it was a total pleasure to deal with him at all times, this greatly added to his value and contribution.

I thus have no hesitation in strongly commending Brian as a motivational and goal focused speaker for any group, organisation or business seeking to expand their horizons and take on new challenges.

We would willingly use him again.
